

The CRA is denying Canadian Child Benefits to caretakers who are legally entitled to them.

If this is you, you are not alone...

You are overworked and struggling to provide for your kids and survive.

The CRA took away your CCB suddenly and claim you owe them money.

They are demanding proof that you are separated... proof that you are the primary caretaker of a child... proof that a child exists...

You struggle a lot without this money.

They want letters from authority figures, bills and paperwork, legal docs

You make appointments, repeatedly explain your situation to strangers, chase down people and documents.... You're already so tired...

You send the proof. The CRA rejects it.

You do this multiple times. They don't always tell you why.

They might give different reasons and criteria every time.

There is no break from caring for children.

You take out loans and strain your relationships to make ends meet...

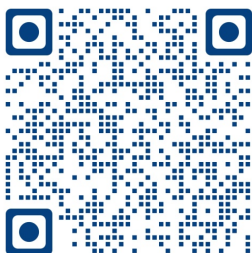

You wait for answers. You wait for people to get back to you.

The bills keep coming... You are drowning in debt... There is no relief in sight

HELL NO...

CRA Better Have My Money

<https://linktr.ee/CRAbetterhavemymoney>

Read about people who have experienced the same ordeal.